LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

of the

DEPARTING CIVIL ENGINEERS

Having reached that point in our careers where our success in life will be rated upon our merits, rather than upon our midterm grades, we, the members of the C. E. graduating class of 1936 deem it wise to write our last Will and Testament.

Our esteem and respect for our professors we leave to the incoming senior class, with the hope that they may profit thereby. John Boylan, otherwise known as Dudley, leaves to George Sargent his way with the professors.

John Beebe (those that can, do; those that can't, teach) intrusts the instruction of sophomores to Prof. Wall, while Bob Carroll leaves his angle-turning activities to that intrepid trio, Haag, Robinson, and Saalfeld. George "you don't do it that way" Dando leaves his pipe behind (we hope) to anyone foolish enough to want it. Ed Burrow's proficiency with a slip-stick will probably be equaled by Lewis Cisler.

"Wild Bill" Ellis, whose heart is ever in Georgetown, leaves his soil erosion studies to any fortunate senior. R. E. "Heckler" Fisher leaves the fort in complete charge of Lt. Colonel Kuenning. Mark Fleming bequeaths to almost any senior his amazing ability to sleep in class, while Maxie McKee will relieve Chuck Henderson of his title of department Romeo.

Clarence Lafe, the Cleveland flash, joins with Sam Luckino in wishing the new seniors luck in taking that last hurdle. Dick Lewis leaves his passion for milk and red heads to that Guysville Guy—Dick Snow. Adrian Loomis, the man nobody knows, leaves his knack for evading reporters to Ed Miller, who may someday need it. Noah Rodeheffer (Americaneer, hears little, tells all) leaves his activities in the hands of Lewis Skillman.

Kenny Polta, Pride of Sandusky, leaves behind a record for supercilious wise-cracks and superlative satire which will be hard for any senior to equal. Is he laughing? Betsy Damila Molsberry (also known as Front-page) by earning her B. C. E. degree has set a precedent. She leaves her record as an example for future women civils. Betsy has done right well for herself.

Wayne Shepherd, the man with responsibilities and little hair, together with Orrin Lau and Charles Martin, heave a sigh, and leave behind many sleepless nights. Probable cause: Midterms and Women. George Strollo wills his infectious good humor to Mrs. Brown. She will need it to cope with the crazy humor of the incoming seniors. Whut's all th' furse about, Morrison?

W. E. Spitzer, A. S. C. E. Ex-prexie, leaves the problem of the society in the hands of John Morrison while Charles "Butterworth" Smith hands the secretarial folio to Don Rhoton. Joe Sullivan, the man of few words, looks on silently, but leaves behind the impression of wisdom.

Jimmy Visintine, who has calmed down considerably since his days of sugaring concrete, etc., wills all his studiousness to Johnny Niple. G. W. Colville and R. R. Fenton, both of whom would rather swim than study, remain silent, and simply leave.

We, the undersigned, hereby record our desires, and demonstrate our preference for levity and Brevity (in the Derby—remember?). In the years to come, may we look back upon our sojourn at Ohio State, our Alma Mater, as one of the most pleasant periods of our life.
